Loosdorf Bank Branch Office

In the project of the Raiffeisen Bank Branch Office in Loosdorf, Lower Austria, the task was to create a high-visibility building and to develop a concept for the deployment of modern banking facilities. The main focus thus was on interactivity: a bank that is open to customers day and night, not only on the Internet, but through round-the-clock accessible self-service banking facilities.

EU7 – Residential and Office Building →

The site, a north-south-oriented building gap, is situated alongside the EU7 road in the center of Loosdorf, Lower Austria. According to the development plan, the building had to be a closed-facade construction. One further requirement was to consider the special topographic conditions and the resulting height difference to the neighboring buildings from the early and mid-1990s.

Economic/Agricultural Chamber Building Melk

Lower Austria

The building structure and appearance are derived from the urban context and the projected use. The composition is based on transparency, flexibility and communication. The orientation of the open entrance hall and glazed event area above toward the city relates the building to the surrounding historical urban context and the Benedictine monastery.
